A patent for a weighing device to be used in the ice box of any refrigerator has been applied for by Charles H. Van Deusen of Burlington.

The Van Ness hotel at Burlington has a chameleon left by some southern tourist as a mascot, the little fellow living in a large green palm.

Rev. F. T. Crane has resigned the pastorate of Unity church in Stowe. It is reported that he has received a call to a church in Sterling, Me.

E. S. Johnson has sold his Morrisville farm, including stock, tools, etc., on the Stowe road to A. E. Ricketson of Peru, N. Y., for a consideration of $11,000.

Frank Carlson, until a few weeks ago employed in Fowler, has been adjudged insane in Canada and has been put into a retreat there. He tried to commit suicide.

A man named Gunther of New York, who has a summer home at Manchester, returned Saturday afternoon from the golf links and died suddenly at his cottage.

D. M. Walsh, a former Vermont man hailing from Rutland, is one of the ten men the United States government has sent to inspect the milk supply of the state.

Children playing with matches are supposed to have set the fire which destroyed the barn of Howard Courser in Johnson Friday. All the hay and three hogs were consumed.

Through a strip of territory including Shaftsbury and Arlington there has appeared a grasshopper plague that threatens to eat up the entire crops of the farmers in that district.

Robert Steele of Middlebury cut a gash five inches long on the top of his head Saturday when diving in the Otter creek and his head struck a sharp rock on the bottom. He is 15 years old.

John Dunning of Wheelock has a case of smallpox. Though not at all sick he has been removed to a tent, where his wants are attended to. A wholesale vaccination has been in order in Wheelock.

Members of the staff of the American Museum of Natural History of New York will be in camp at Chittenden pond during August, and while there will endeavor to make a collection of the fauna of the locality.

Patrick Denning, proprietor of a Rutland feed store, has filed a petition for bankruptcy. His liabilities are $1040 and he has assets of $550 of which $300 are claimed exempt.

Edward Francis Webber, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron M. Webber, who live on a farm about four miles out of Woodstock, has been missing since Tuesday, July 11. On that day he went to Woodstock to make some strawberry deliveries and about 11 o'clock telephoned that he was about to start for home. He had taken his "best clothes" with him in the delivery team and had changed them in the horse shed where the father found the team intact.

ORANGE COUNTY FARMERS' ASSOCIATION NOTES.

Notes for week ending July 22:

The summer seeding on the alfalfa demonstration plots of E. C. Bond of Thetford, H. H. Bartlett of Fairlee, L. E. Hardy of Bradford, F. H. Wilcox of Brookfield, and James Swaine of Brookfield has been made this past week. The first four named had plots in the same field seeded in the spring. All are now looking fine. Mr. Hardy's and Mr. Wilcox's had no nurse crop and are more stocky at present than the others and show the benefit of lime already. It is not too late to put in the summer seeding yet, but it is advised before Aug. 1. Potatoes are looking fine as yet but the danger from blight is great with continued hot weather. So far no positive cases of blight have been seen, so there is still time to spray with bordeaux, using at least two and one-half pounds of copper sulphate (blue vitriol) and an equal quantity of burnt lime to 50 gallons of water. Remember our last year's experience with blight and be prepared.

Plans for the annual meeting of the Orange County Farmers' association are being fast completed. The date is now set as Thursday, Aug. 10. Hon. E. S. Brigham, state commissioner of agriculture, and Thomas Bradley, director of the state extension service, will speak and we hope to get others. It will be an all-day session, with business meeting in the forenoon and speaking following in the afternoon. The place is Chelsea. Begin making your plans now to get up several auto loads from your town to be present at this meeting.

The committee making plans for the Washington and Orange counties' joint field day and picnic to be held in Barre at the Granite City trotting park the latter part of August announce a cattle judging contest for boys under 18 and for men. Representatives of two dairy breeds, Holstein and Guernsey, to the number of seven from each will be lined up with numbers before the contestants and they will be given a chance to place them according to their judgment. Ribbons will be given to those placing these nearest to the judgment of the judges.

Following this there will be a demonstration lecture on judging. Any farmer of either county who wishes to exhibit livestock will be allowed to, but no prizes will be given. If you wish to do so, please notify the county agent. A basket lunch and speakers will be among the other features of this event. Why not get up a judging team of boys or men to compete from your town?

This coming week, ending July 29, the county agent plans to make the summer seeding of alfalfa on the following plots: Tuesday, July 25, Guy Moxley, Chelsea, and Benjamin Tucker, Tunbridge; Wednesday, July 26, Wesley Seaver, Williamstown; Thursday, July 27, Fred Rowe, Topsham; Friday, July 28, W. H. Robinson, Stratford.

A Shifting State Boundary.

The supreme court of the United States has on hand a difficult question in the settlement of the boundary line between New Hampshire and Vermont.

Arriving somewhat late on the scene, the new state of Vermont had to accept, in 1791, the boundary which the king of England had accommodated to New Hampshire, namely, the western bank of the Connecticut river. The fixing of the bank of any stream, as a border, instead of the middle of the main current, wherever that may flow, is always productive of trouble and dispute, for the banks of streams often change, and the question must arise whether the boundary changes with them. All islands in the Connecticut, opposite her territory, belong to New Hampshire. But islands have become joined to the Vermont mainland. Do they by this process become a part of Vermont?

The current has shifted so as to convert into an island what has been a part of Vermont mainland. Does that shift the territory into New Hampshire? Land has been made on the Vermont side, on which both states have attempted to collect taxes. To which do the taxes belong? A great industrial dam has flooded Vermont meadows in and above Verdon and Brattleboro. Does that flooded land now belong to New Hampshire and will it go back to Vermont again as soon as the water is drawn off?

Questions like these, all of which are founded upon actual conditions or occurrences, suggest the impossibility of maintaining that kind of a boundary between American states. No doubt the supreme court, being governed by scrupulous respect for the letter of the law, will be inclined to defend the authority of the king of England's king, but it will certainly devolve upon the court to provide, if possible, some other sort of boundary between the states than a movable one. It would be a strange thing if the court should give territorial authority to New Hampshire over manufacturing establishments which have been erected within the accepted limits of Vermont towns, simply because a portion of a river bank has in the process of time been filled in.

Boundary questions between states of the union have frequently arisen, and they have been settled amicably in all cases. Massachusetts has gained land from Rhode Island, and some of that land, being in the city of Fall River, is very valuable. There is, indeed, scarcely a boundary between the states which has not been affected by controversy. But American states settle such controversies quite peaceably in all cases. New Hampshire and Vermont will not go to war.—Boston Transcript.
